

HITLER CLAIMS PRESIDENCY

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

THIS morning's mail brings me a campaign letter from Howard Reed with an enclosure signed by John W. Nance attacking Governor Futrell's highway refunding program. By enclosing Mr. Nance's statement Candidate Reed obviously endorses it—and this is surprising in a man who played as important a role as Comptroller Reed played in running up a highway debt from which Governor Futrell is now trying to rescue us.

Governor Futrell to Make Speech Here at 4 Friday

Re-Election Speech to Be Made From First Baptist Church Lawn

CO. RALLY MONDAY

Hempstead Tour Date Again Changed for City of Hope Voters

Governor J. M. Futrell will speak to the voters of Hempstead county in the interest of his re-election Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock from First Baptist church lawn in Hope.

The governor's address Friday will mark his second appearance in Hempstead county within the last two months. He was a featured speaker on the Spring Visiting day program at the First & Travel Branch Experiment station the latter part of June.

Loud speakers will be set up to convey his message to the voters.

A political rally for Hempstead county candidates, scheduled Saturday night from First Baptist church lawn, has been postponed again.

Protests from business men and clerks who would not be given an opportunity to hear the candidates on Saturday night, caused the date to be changed to next Monday night at the city hall lawn, starting at 8 o'clock. Committee to be visited the balance of this week by county candidates on their stump-speaking tour includes:

Wednesday—Saratoga; Thursday—Columbus; Friday—Ozan.

Nashville's Fete to Open Thursday

Mary Honeycutt to Be Queen Over 3-Day Peach Celebration

NASHVILLE, Ark.—Miss Mary Honeycutt of Nashville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Honeycutt, was elected queen of the first annual peach festival, to be held here Thursday, Friday and Saturday. She will be crowned during the pageant Thursday night.

The festival will open with a parade of decorated floats and cars. Seventy-five Texarkana business men will be here on a good will tour and will be shown through the world's largest peach orchard near town. Parades from 10 neighboring towns will participate in the pageant. Texarkana, Hope, Blewett, Saratoga, Dierkes, Columbus, Center Point, Murfreesboro, Mineral Spring and Ashdown will be represented.

Governor Futrell will speak Friday. Other features will be baseball games, a rodeo, band concerts, airplane stunt flying and a dance each night. A large display of peaches will be held.

Balloon Reached 60,613-Foot Mark

Barograph Undamaged—But Elevation Is Short of New Record

WASHINGTON (AP)—The ill-starred stratosphere balloon "Explorer" was shown Tuesday night by official calibration to have begun to fall to destruction at a top height of 60,613 feet.

Reading of the balloon's barographs by the United States Bureau of Standards ended all hope that the big bag might have set a new altitude record. The "official ceiling" however, was several hundred feet higher than calculated by the balloonists.

John Oliver LaGrone, vice-president of the National Geographic Society, reported the readings.

"The barographs inclosed in a balsam wood box and insulated with sponge rubber to pick up shock, escaped serious injury probably because they were fastened in the rigging outside the gondola," he said. "The tracings of this record itself were intact."

A Leipzig doctor has developed an antitoxin, known as "antikenatoxin," which after being injected into the skin, is said to relieve fatigue.

Mr. Nance makes this statement: Governor Futrell... prevented the 1934 special session of the legislature from amending the refunding law so as to provide for actual and unequivocal assumption of the payment of those (Road Improvement District) bonds and making them a part of the state's highway indebtedness so as to forever protect the bonded landowners from foreclosure of the lien on their lands. The governor undoubtedly did that as a special favor to the holders of the state highway bonds.

This is nonsense. It isn't even clever conceit—for it assumes that the taxpayers are so dumb they have forgotten there were two entirely different kinds of highway debt, supported by different collateral and different contracts, on both of which the bondholders could walk into any court in the land and beat the taxpayers.

The Road Improvement District bonds were supported by a MORTGAGE ON THE LAND.

The Martineau bonds for new construction beginning in 1927 were supported by a MORTGAGE ON THE GASOLINE TAX.

When Arkansas found she couldn't build paved roads on a land tax she executed, beginning in 1927, a bond new mortgage on the gasoline tax to raise additional road money.

It was agreed that whatever money was left over from the gasoline tax after meeting its own bonds would be applied to the bonds of the old road improvement districts.

The state court won't assume the principal of these old bonds because it was recognized that the only dependable source of income was the gasoline tax—and the FIRST MORTGAGE ON THE GASOLINE TAX HAD TO BE GIVEN NEW BOND-HOLDERS TO RAISE NEW MONEY.

But the state could and did meet the interest and serial payments on the old district bonds from 1927 until the collapse in 1932.

No reasonable man ever assumed that the state could arbitrarily take away the first mortgage on gasoline revenues from the new bondholders and split it with the old bondholders. The law of the land won't permit borrowing money from a man and then changing the collateral you have given him, without his consent. The bondholders wouldn't consent.

The proposition before Governor Futrell in attempting to refund the highway debt was primarily to revise the interest and principal terms of the Martineau law—not to state a brand new proposition.

It's all right to be an I WISH man—but this was a business proposition. If the law of contracts wouldn't permit an absolute state guarantee of the old road district debt, then the next best thing was to beat down the requirements of the Martineau law bondholders (since 1927) until state revenues would be left sufficient surplus to take care of the old district debt as it fell due.

Under the last three administrations—Martineau, Parnell, Futrell—no road improvement taxpayer has had to pay one dime on the old road debt for which his property is mortgaged.

He came close to the danger-line these last two years, but the Futrell refunding law saved him. July gasoline tax revenues, you read in this

1,400 Orleans Cops Face 700 Troops

Federal Officials Hold Off, Awaiting Petition for Help

War Department Hasn't Yet Received City's Formal Request

BATTLE FOR VOTES

Long Determined to Go Behind Records of City Machine

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(AP)—Bloodshed impended on New Orleans' martial-law-torn political battleground Wednesday as 1,400 police and 700 National Guardsmen stood antagonistically at arms only a few miles apart.

U. S. Awaits Petition

WASHINGTON (AP)—Acting Secretary of War Woodring informed a representative of Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans Wednesday that the Department of War will take no official action in the controversy between the Walmsley and Senator Huey P. Long factions in Louisiana pending receipt of such a request.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(P)—

Shortly before midnight Tuesday, Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley ordered 400 armed policemen on duty at police headquarters to resist a reported attempt by Senator Huey P. Long and his state administration followers to seize the police department with some 500 National Guardsmen mobilized at Jackson barracks on the edge of the city.

At the same time four machine guns were mounted in the windows of the office of the city voters registration office which was seized by the militia on a proclamation of Governor O. K. Allen at the behest of Senator Long.

Three of the guns were trained on entrances of the city hall across a narrow street from the registrar's office. Rumors flew over the city that the troop movement would be ordered in the early morning while other reports gave the time as noon Wednesday when the newly created and hotly contested New Orleans Police Commission would take office under the act passed at the recent session of the legislature which was dominated by Long.

City administration leaders obtained a restraining order in court Tuesday to prevent the new board taking office on the grounds of illegality and hearing on a permanent injunction was fixed for Monday.

Battle Possible

Possibility of a clash between troops and police gave the political dispute between the city administration, headed by Mayor Walmsley, and the state administration, dominated by Long, a most serious turn with city leaders predicting that such an encounter would result in bloodshed.

Early in the night both Walmsley and Long spoke over radios in which each sought to explain his positions. Walmsley called Long a "cringing coward" and warned him that if a life or limb would "pay the penalty as other carpet-baggers have done before you."

Long sought to compromise with Walmsley over the police board but added that "Turkey-head Walmsley" would not accept that as he feared an "honest board." Long said they had scratched 25,000 names from the voters' roll as they were fraudulent registrations.

Guardsmen Called Out

Almost simultaneously with city appeals to federal authorities, based on charges that the militia had been illegally used by the state administration, dominated by Long, in the seizure of the city voting registration office, a general mobilization of all companies of the New Orleans National Guard started.

Twelve companies, consisting of approximately 750 men, and including infantry, artillery and cavalry, were called to the barracks, militia headquarters.

No information was immediately available on what use would be made of the augmented force.

Guards stationed around the barracks prevented anyone from entering, but late in the day Long whisked past the sentries in a big limousine for inspection of his "army." A short time later he whisked out again after apparently having held a "council of war."

Dr. H. D. Linker Opens Veterinarian Office

Dr. H. D. Linker, veterinarian, has established an office and hospital at 111 North Walnut, a building he occupied for 14 years before moving to Missouri seven years ago.

Dr. Linker, in returning to Hope, said he would be permanently located at the above address. Dr. Linker and Mrs. Linker are making their home at 125 North Walnut.

Louisiana Troops Invade New Orleans

The above photograph shows Louisiana state troops breaking into the registrar of voters' office in New Orleans Monday after Governor O. K. Allen had declared partial martial law.

Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans said: "It is an effort to steal the next election by tampering with the registration books."

Senator Long said: "We told 'em we were going to do it. We told them we were going to take the names of crooked voters off the lists."

Rain and Cooler, State's Forecast

Clouds Obscure Sun, Checking Heat Wave Wednesday

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Restrained by clouds during most of the morning the sun was temporarily halted from making Wednesday another hot day for central Arkansas.

The thermometer remained in the 80's during most of the morning, but started climbing toward noon. Showers and cooler weather are predicted.

Six Nations Ruled Out in Bargaining

Relations Cool Between U. S. and Largest Customers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Political and economic questions have eliminated at least six nations—including Canada, Mexico, Argentina, Chile, Peru and Uruguay—from American goods—from immediate consideration in negotiations for new reciprocal trade agreements.

An authoritative source disclosed on Tuesday that the State Department and the president's Tariff Bargaining Committee have no plans for instituting negotiations in the near future with Great Britain, Germany, Soviet Russia, Canada, Argentina and Austria.

Several other nations, also numbered among America's good customers likewise are missing from the tentative list now being made up by the Tariff Committee.

Sweden, Portugal and several other European nations still are under consideration for early negotiations. Brazil and a bloc of Latin American nations, producing 95 per cent of our American coffee imports, are scheduled for new reciprocal agreements as quickly as the Cuban agreement now nearing completion, is finished.

The tariff negotiators, interested in recovering as much of this country's lost foreign trade as possible, are hopeful that conditions may change by the time the Latin American agreements are concluded so negotiations can be started with some of the larger European countries.

Bodew Speaking Friday

There will be an all-day political meeting and singing program Friday, August 3 at Bodew, beginning at 10 a. m. Nevada county candidates will be present, and district and state candidates are invited, according to H. S. Herring, of the committee.

Sing at Hinton Friday

A singing school program is to be given at Hinton church, Friday night, August 3.

Myers Surrenders for Death of Girl

Oklahoma University Student Appears to Face Charge of Murder

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.—(AP)—Neal Myers, young pharmacy student who eluded the officers of three states for three weeks, surrendered to his attorney here Wednesday to face murder charges in connection with the death of Marian Mills, former beauty queen at the University of Oklahoma.

Myers and his attorney are scheduled to appear before the Norman (Okla.) authorities late Wednesday. The girl's death was ascribed to the use of quick remedies to avert motherhood, although chemists said their examination failed to disclose the cause of death.

Taken to Norman late in the day for his arraignment, Myers pleaded not guilty. He insisted he had committed no crime.

Five Escape When Car Upsets, Burns

Little Rock Driver Takes to Ditch to Avoid Collision

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Five persons escaped serious injury when the driver of the automobile in which they were riding swerved into a ditch to avoid hitting another car Wednesday.

The accident occurred at Redfield, about 20 miles south of here. The car caught fire.

Those in the car included W. D. White, Little Rock, driver and owner, his wife, and Vernon Anderson of Russellville.

To Relocate CCC Camps; Abandon 8

2 New Ones Will Be Located Near Conway and Devil's Glen

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Eight Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) camps will be abandoned and two new projects started October 1 when the movement of companies from the Northern to the Southern states is started, according to information received at headquarters here Wednesday.

The new camps will be located near Conway and Devil's Glen, where one is already established.

Board of Health Checking Up City

Citizens Should Report Insanitary Conditions at Once

The newly created City Health Board will launch a "clean-up" campaign in Hope to better sanitary conditions, members of the board announced Wednesday.

Surveys will be made of the city in an attempt to remedy insanitary housing conditions. Two trips into the residential district have been made. One of the surveys the Health Board discovered a family using its water supply from a cistern.

At the same place a death occurred last year from typhoid fever.

Persons who know of similar conditions are urged to get in touch with any of the board members. They are: Dr. G. E. Cannon, R. V. Herndon, Dr. W. G. Allison, Lawrence Boswell and Dr. R. Alexander.

Another survey will be made Thursday and will continue until the entire city has been inspected.

3 of 4 Fugitives Are Recaptured

One of Trusty Guards Wounded in Defying His Captors

TUCKER PRISON FARM, Ark.—(AP)—Palmer Bridges and John Byers, convict guards who escaped from the state prison farm here, were captured late Tuesday near Lake Village, after Bridges had been shot in the right arm when prison officials said he reached for a gun.

Chased from bottom land by bloodhounds, Bridges, serving a life term from Prairie county for murder, was shot by Captain Jewel Acklin of the Tucker farm. The prison officer said that the convict made a move to pull a pistol. Byers surrendered without resistance.

The two trusty guards were armed with revolvers due to their being on duty guarding two other prisoners when they escaped late yesterday. T. F. Bramlett surrendered today while the fourth member of the road gang, John Savage of St. Francis county, convicted robber, was believed to be somewhere near Viégsburg, Miss., where his fellow fugitives had taken him in fruitless search for $1,700 that Savage said he buried there.

Prison officials said Bridges was placed in a Lake Village hospital under guard. Amputation of his right arm was expected to be speedy.

At the same place a death occurred last year from typhoid fever.

Persons who know of similar conditions are urged to get in touch with any of the board members. They are: Dr. G. E. Cannon, R. V. Herndon, Dr. W. G. Allison, Lawrence Boswell and Dr. R. Alexander.

Death Agony Sets in for Hindenburg as Hitler Awaits

Chancellor Is Resolved to Be Germany's President Too

ABSOLUTE DICTATOR

Would Make Nazi Leader Most Absolute in Civilized World

BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—An announcement at 8:28 o'clock Wednesday night (European time—mid-afternoon in Hope) said President von Hindenburg's death agony had set in and death was expected in less than an hour.

Copyright, Associated Press

BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler intends to be both president and chancellor of Germany, one of his close friends told the Associated Press Wednesday.

This would give Hitler a dictatorship as absolute as any in the world.

Hindenburg Weaker

NEUDECK, Germany.—(AP)—Chancellor Hitler spent 1½ hours with President von Hindenburg Wednesday, then left by automobile with his full staff.

An official bulletin said the president grew weaker during the night.

President Is Dying

BERLIN, Germany.—President Paul von Hindenburg, sturdy idol of the German people was under the constant care of physicians Tuesday as speculation in the German press regarding the succession of the president in case he should die was forbidden by the Propaganda Ministry in an order informing journalists that "all that has been taken care of."

In view of the president's critical condition, all light music was taken off the radio broadcasting programs and only serious music put on the air.

An Associated Press correspondent Tuesday night found President Hindenburg's country home closely guarded by the Secret Service and state police and every room of the house was lighted.

The correspondent was almost arrested when he drove up to the estate in a taxicab. Officers told him to leave immediately and disregarded requests that he be allowed to see persons connected with the von Hindenburg home with whom he was acquainted.

Three of the attending physicians went out for a stroll, but left instructions to keep the gate open so they could rush back without delay at any moment.

Aside from the immediate question of the president's condition is the important problem regarding succession. Political circles mention several possibilities, but the government showed that speculation distinctly is not wanted by suspending for a week the newspaper Deutsche Zeitung for the "factless" (though distinctly pro-Hitler) comment.

The possibility was that Dr. Edwin Burke, president of the Supreme Court would become temporary president until elections are held.

However, it was pointed out by a Foreign Office official that "the Hitler government holds emergency powers enabling it to do almost anything."

Should the Nazi dictator "do almost anything" some circles wondered if he would be content to become president and thus be more removed from the political scene, or would he rather push the post of chancellor and rule somewhat after the American fashion, centralizing the chancellor's powers in the presidency.

Ward Against Diabetes If It Shows In The Family

You are likely to have diabetes if any member of your family has had it. In other words, you inherit some defect of structure and perhaps related to the pancreas or some other gland.

If your family, therefore, has had a history of diabetes, you should be particularly on your guard against various constitutional factors related to the disease. You should have regular examinations of the excretions of the bladder at least once every six months, so as to detect the presence of sugar at the earliest possible time, and to provide for suitable diet and other medical control when sugar is found.

The occurrence of diabetes in twins has been observed frequently by physicians. In practically all of these cases, the twins were what is called similar, instead of dissimilar twins.

In a Boston clinic, 26 of the patients having diabetes were found to be twins—13 similar and 13 dissimilar. Among nine of the 13 sets of similar twins, both were diabetic, whereas only two of the 13 sets of dissimilar twins were both diabetic.

This is of course about what could have been expected since it is known that similar twins tend to develop physical disturbances of the same type. As evidence of the extent to which diabetes in inherited, the condition has been found to occur ten times more often in the brothers and sisters of diabetic patients than in people generally. Moreover, it is found that many of the blood relatives of patients with diabetes develop the presence of sugar in the excretions without actually having diabetes itself.

Investigators are convinced that a potentiality or likelihood exists for developing diabetes which is transmitted in humans according to the laws of heredity. There are other physical factors involved as well as the factor of likelihood. The presence of overweight, the eating of vast amounts of carbohydrate food, which throws special stress on the organ involved in digestion and in the handling of sugar by the body, the existence of nerve strain and stress, may throw pressure on weakened organs and tissues which will produce the disease much more certainly when the likelihood exists than when it is absent.

Cure Baby's Summer Rashes With Baths In Soda Solution

This has been a "prickly-heat" summer, and the mother and her baby still have a month or more to go.

Even older children break out with the itchy rash at times, and nothing makes them crosser or more sleepless. Most mothers know now that cool dressing is the secret of preventing heat rash. Baby can be happier in his birthday clothes plus a diaper than all "bound round with a woolen string" as the saying goes. A little cotton hand or shirt is in order if his mother is just sure he's going to catch cold. But when the thermometer is hugging 90, how could he?

And Jimmy and Sue don't need a thing more than enough to save their self-respect. Any little gadget of a suit, loose and minus almost everything is best.

Starts From Perspiration

But—in spite of all this, the itchy pimples do come. Why? Well—little baby or Jimmy or Susy out of bed and observe the pool of perspiration on the sheet. This is why prickly heat appears mostly on the back and neck. The face perspires freely, too, so perhaps the red roughness is also on the cheeks and ears.

The answer is baking soda again, and copious baths. Keep a jar on hand with a soda solution of one teaspoonful to the pint. Dab it on and let it dry. Do it several times a day, freely, on the affected parts.

Bran is a good old-fashioned remedy, too. Put some bran in a little porous bag and swish it around in the bath water. One doctor recommends regular feedings of bran because it has been "denatured" by all sorts of processes such as we demand for our breakfast tables. Maybe it is dustier that way. But anyway, bran.

Baking Soda Remedy

However, I cannot desert my good old friend, baking soda. It, too, is good for the bath water in hot weather. Make it weaker than for the prickly treatment by half. Put a tablespoonful to the quart or even to two quarts for the baby's bath and the other children's, too. It is soothing and comfortable and may prevent the heat rash as well as help to cure it.

Don't be afraid to give the baby more than one tepid bath a day in torrid weather. That is, if he is well and strong. Otherwise, get your doctor to tell what is safe without weakening him. He can be bathed three times a day, or even four. But I think some of them would better be quick sponges.

Make baby's baths snappy affairs anyway. This is why. To soak in tepid water is enervating. Don't let the other children soak in it for an hour either.

At any rate, frequent baths, cool clothes and a light blanket will defeat the itchy rash is persisted in. If it gets too bad, go to the doctor. Don't allow any child to go on suffering. Some cases are persistent and will not respond to simple home remedies.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

This Business of Buying Powder.

It's rather surprising that a good many women who are most particular about rouge and lipstick colors tend to be careless when selecting face powder. Of course, nearly every girl knows better than to wear pinkish powder on skin with yellow undertones or vice versa. Just the same, the errors in choice of powder are numerous.

Don't get face powder until you've tried it on your skin. Every store sells or gives away sample packages. Ask for one before you buy a large box. Take the sample home, remove all makeup, apply fresh foundation and rouge and then powder one side of your face. Stand before a mirror to look at both sides. Unless the powdered side is exactly the same color as the unpowdered one, don't buy that particular shade. Remember that powder isn't supposed to change the color of your skin. It is used to give a dull and well-groomed look to a complexion.

When you're sure that you've matched your powder to your skin, learn to put it on correctly. After foundation, blend on cream rouge. Then, dipping a large clean cotton pad in the powder, press it firmly on face and throat. Don't try to attain an even, smooth effect. Your object now is to make as much powder as possible stay on the skin. Leave it on for a few minutes and then, using a baby brush or the other side of the cotton, dust off the excess.

SOPHIE KERR'S SUPERB LOVE STORY "STAY OUT OF MY LIFE!"

By Sophie Kerr

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JANE FERRY comes to New York determined to show her home town, Maryland, and especially AMY JACKSON, that she can make a success of her life. Amy has been her best friend since childhood. Amy and Howard, a young man Jane had forced upon him and married Amy.

In New York Jane obtains a position in a real estate office and soon is making a large income. She has an affair with ROBERT THORPE, married, but tired of him. When he offers to bear the expense of their child and to temporarily discontinue his marriage, Jane takes the baby, named NANCY, promising never to reveal its parentage.

When America enters the World War Howard enlists in the aviation corps and goes to a training camp in Texas. His mother comes to stay with Amy and Howard. Amy and Howard's mother meets her for the first time.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXVI

MARY JACKSON's tone was unbelieve. "But, Amy," she objected, "Howard never cared for Jane."

"I know that," Amy agreed. "And maybe I'm wrong about Jane. I don't seem to understand her very well now. She's changed a lot—but she's always interesting."

"So's a wild-cat!" said Mary, "at a safe distance. But it's never a household pet."

Amy smiled and went off to write her letter to Howard. She did not send him Mary's message. Indeed she forgot it before she took her pen to her hand. They were conducting an argument at the time about baptism—Howard holding that the child should be baptized as soon as born, Amy consenting only if Howard were present. Otherwise not until Howard could be there. There was also a discussion between them as to whether Amy should have the doctor come in every day, just for a moment of reassuring inspection. Howard thought this necessary. Amy considered it unnecessary.

They wrote these things more for the need of sharing each other's least thoughts and feelings and of making their future together seem sure and safe than from any belief in the value of their subjects. It was all part of waiting, waiting for the child, for the war's end, for the coming back to their normal existence.

In this suspense, in this anticipation, to Amy there was the quality of eternity, of immortality. She and Howard were part of the world's continuity, as had been their parents before them, as would be their children after them.

SHE had hoped all the time that Howard would not come until after the child was born, for if she should suffer, she did not want him to see or hear it. Yet he had made her promise that he should know the first intimation of the hour, so when this time arrived, Mary sent him a wire and he telegraphed back that he would be there in the morning. But by the time he came tearing up to the house, his face under his eyes hollow from an anxious sleepless night, the doctor had gone, his son, old, weighed and clothed in his first garments was sleeping peacefully under the blue blankets. Amy, too, was asleep, while Mrs. Lowe, Mary Jackson, the nurse and Mrs. Pearce were all drinking not coffee and eating not toast and chattering with subdued but gratified hilarity. There was nothing for him to do but sit down and have coffee and toast, too, but he would not have it anywhere except in the bedroom where he could look at Amy and be certain that all was well with her.

He was flushing the last of the coffee when Amy woke and saw him. "For heaven's sake," she exclaimed weakly, "when did you get here? Did you see young Howard? There is a young Howard, isn't there—I don't dream it?"

So the great emotional moment faded into laughter, as he knelt beside her and told her there undoubtedly was a young Howard, weight seven and a half pounds, properly formed and featured, but looking rather as if he had just been pecked.

"That doesn't sound like a proud father!"

"Give me a little time." He held her hands, and kissed them. "Amy, darling—you are all right, they told me so but I want to hear you say it."

"Me—why, I'm simply grand. It wasn't so bad—" but her eyelids fluttered down once more in exhausted slumber. When the nurse came in a few minutes later she found Howard asleep, too, on his knees, his head on the bed beside Amy's right hand. With some difficulty she roused him enough to get him over to the couch; he dropped there and was off again. Neither of them woke until early afternoon.

HE would not stir from the room. Now and then they talked a little and as her strength returned she began to ask questions. "How long can you stay?"

"A whole week, love."

"Oh, wonderful! How did you manage it?"

"I said I had to have it. Besides—"

She was looking at his uniform. "Why Howard—what's that? The insignia's changed. You're not—you are a captain?"

"Darling, that's me, old Cap. Jackson! Is that pretty warm?"

"But they haven't ordered you overseas?"

"No—they don't care who wins this war!"

"But there's something—have they ordered you to Long Island?" It was no use lying, though he would gladly have done it. "Yes, darling, I'm to go on from here. I'm not going back to Texas."

She clutched him, tried to get up, but then—oh, Howard, do you think—?"

"I don't know, I can't tell. It looks as though I'd stay there as an instructor, dear. Don't worry, don't excite yourself. Please, please, sweet—I'm here with you, we've won our long elegant war. Nothing's happened, except I've stepped up a grade and consequently drawing more pay." He tried to divert her fears. "You didn't know it, but I've brought you a present, nothing much, but it's like you. I want to show it to you." He brought it out, a necklace of Indian work, graduated rounds of turquoise, a silver amulet in the center, a silver beaded clasp, crude but well-proportioned, genuine in feeling.

For the baby he had brought a silver rattle with turquoise in the handle, too heavy for a child less than a year old to handle, but attractive in itself. Amy fingered and admired. She did not speak again of Howard's leaving the Texas camp. "Since you can stay so long, we'll have the christening," she said, "the day before you leave. I'll be able to sit up by then. Mary and Mother'll arrange it. I don't want you to do a thing but stay here with me."

BUT of course he could not do quite that. Professor Elliott was clamoring to see him and he had to call on the president and dean of the college. But for the most part people were kind and did not encroach on his time. He could spend most of his day in the big bedroom, sitting beside Amy, watching her and their son together. There was not much to watch about the baby. "He's hardly more than an embryo," said Howard, "a funny little pulp. He does nothing but eat and sleep, and he belongs to you. That's what I call a perfect life."

On the last day of the week they had the christening and Howard Jackson, Second, raised a piercing yell when the water touched his head. Professor Elliott was his godfather, and the only guest outside of the family except Alice Moreland. There were few guests, but many gifts—three silver cups, a silver plate and porringer and silver spoons, gold pins and buttons to be displayed beside the silver rattle. Miss Rosa sent an enchanting toy, a music box which played "Hail to the Chief." "Keemo Kimo," "The Bluebird Polka," and "Home Sweet Home." "This kid is wealthy," remarked Miss Tyler.

Professor Elliott lingered to talk, hang back on his way through the hall and started off on still another theme with his hand on the doorknob. To keep out the raw March wind Howard closed the door behind him and stood on the steps with him until the old man's garrulity was satisfied. When Howard at last came in he began to sneeze and by 10 o'clock his eyes and nose were watery and felt, he said, as if they were full of mush, a quick terrible head cold. Miss Tyler dosed him, massaged his head and face and sent him off to bed with a boiling hot drink. "That ought to sweat out the most of it," she said. "But I wish you didn't have to get on that train in the morning. Now don't kiss your wife—colds are contagious."

"I'm going to kiss him in the morning," said Amy, "no matter what you say."

Reporters Given Fine on 7th Day

But "Court Is Not Weakening," Says Kentucky Judge

DANVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Jack Durman and Wesley Carty, two young reporters who have been going to jail daily with clocklike regularity for refusing to violate a confidence, were given fines instead of jail sentences late Tuesday.

Police Judge Jay W. Harlan in assessing them $3 each, remarked however, as he did so, "I want you to understand that this court is not weakening because of this fine." He ordered them to come back Wednesday.

The pair, held in contempt each day since July 23 when they first declined to say who tipped them that Representative J. Sterling Towles was to be hanged in effigy, have spent 33 hours each in jail and paid several fines, totalling with costs $1875 each. The first day they were fined $10 each and after that went to jail each day for stays of three to six hours with an occasionally small fine.

Approval of their stand in refusing to disclose information given them as reporters in confidence has come to them from newsmen in various parts of the country, including a letter from George A. Joplin, Jr., president of the Kentucky Press Association, who offered the association's aid if they desired it. Thus far they have refused outside aid and also declined Judge Harlan's suggestion that they seek to override his ruling by a writ of habeas corpus.

In answer to a question as to whether he had received any communication about the contempt case, now in its second week, Judge Harlan said: "I have letters from many attorneys throughout the state upholding my stand and also communications from citizens in this community endorsing me."

"Stick to your guns and don't violate the confidence placed in you," the reporters were advised in a letter from Mr. Joplin, Somerset publisher. "You are living up to one of the best qualifications of a good newspaper reporter. If the Kentucky Press Association can be of assistance call on us."

Wife Is Located by Angered Texan

Chester B. Collins Finds She Never Left Fort Worth

LITTLE ROCK—Chester B. Collins, Fort Worth lawyer, who Monday night shot and dangerously wounded Harry White, Redfield radio crooner, he accused of intimacy with his wife, said Tuesday that Mrs. Collins had called him from Fort Worth.

"I learned from her," said the attorney at his room in the Hotel Marion, where the tragedy was enacted, "that she did not leave that city Saturday when she left home. She's not at home now, but she's in Fort Worth. That's all I can tell you now."

When asked whether they would be reunited, Collins requested that the matter not be mentioned.

Meanwhile at St. Vincent's infirmary White apparently was recovering from the wound caused when the bullet penetrated the region of his heart and emerged under his right arm. Doctors said the ball passed through the right lung and unless pneumonia develops White has an excellent chance for recovery.

Collins, who planned to return home Tuesday night said he appreciated the manner in which he was treated here after the tragedy.

"Being a stranger in a strange city and facing a serious charge," always Arkansas, believe me I would not hesitate to assure you I never knew strangers could be so nice as I have found the people here.

"The officers, newspapers and reporters, all alike, were more than courteous to me. Words fail me in expressing my sincere gratitude to them. If I can ever render any service whatsoever to any person living in Arkansas, believe me I will not hesitate."

Publicity Racket Charged at L. R.

Candidate Says Free Weekly Is Faking Straw Vote Contest

LITTLE ROCK—A political candidate filed suit in Chancery Court to restrain the Palaski Free Press from further publication of a "straw ballot" on the grounds that it was "false and fictitious" and a "fraudulent scheme to mislead and deceive the public and to coerce candidates to advertise in said publication under threats that they will be defeated if they do not do so."

The complainant is Walter M. Purvis, one of the 12 candidates for the legislature from Pulaski county. A hearing on the temporary injunction is scheduled for 10 a. m. today.

Mr. Purvis complained that the Palaski County Free Press is not a bona fide newspaper and has no bona fide circulation in Pulaski county or elsewhere and does not have a circulation list or a single subscriber, and has not been entered in the Postoffice Department and qualified to be distributed through the United States mail, and is therefore only a circular and is not signed as required by law.

Mr. Purvis complained that "solely on account of his refusal to pay defendants to run political advertising for him, the defendants are fraudulently representing to the public that other candidates opposing him are running far in the lead of the plaintiff."

He also alleged that "at least two of his opponents who were running far behind in said purported 'straw ballot' paid defendants the sum of $5 each for a small advertisement upon condition that their names be shown in the lead upon subsequent publication of said 'straw ballot' and without a single vote cast for them by anyone to their knowledge, the defendant did place said candidates in the lead in the same issue of said publication in which their $5 advertisements were published."

Bells Chapel

This community received a much needed rain Monday evening with some wind that done little damage.

Bro. France of Texarkana started a 10 days' revival at this place Friday night. Everyone is invited to attend these services. We are having some good singing and preaching.

Freddie Cullins spent the week-end with his sister, Mrs. Otis Foster, of Rosston last week.

Doris Cullins left last Friday for Highland to work in the peach harvest. Several from here have been attending the revival at the Church of Christ of Blovinis this week.

Aldon Houser and Shellie Cullins made a business trip to Hot Springs Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Walker and daughter of Tallulah, La., arrived on Tuesday night for a visit with Mrs. H. Walker and other relatives.

Little Miss Sophie Williams entertained a group of her neighborhood friends Tuesday afternoon at the home of her aunts, Misses Marie and Nannie Perkins on East Second street. The occasion marked the celebration of the young hostess' sixth birthday anniversary. The children of the neighborhood were her guests, and there was a beautiful cake topped with six glowing candles centering a decorated table. After a number of entertaining games, the cake was cut and served with delicious ice course.

Mrs. Ted Hank and children of Hugo, Okla., are the guests of Misses Callie and Sue Weston.

Much to the regret of their many friends, Mr. and Mrs. Polk Singleton and family left Wednesday morning for their new home in Tucson, Ariz.

Clarence Stoneberger who has been the guest of Miss DeNolla Dodson, has returned to his home in Texas City, Texas.

Outstanding among the delightful parties that were given for Miss Martha Ann Singleton before leaving for her new home in Tucson, Ariz., was the party given Tuesday morning by Miss Mary Nell Carter at her home on South Elm street. Three tables were arranged for games, with the prize for high score going to Miss Ruth Lewis. The honoree was presented with a gift of remembrance. A delicious ice course was served to the following: Martha Ann Singleton, Ruth Lewis, Margery Waddle, Nell Williams, Enola Alexander, Katherine Franks, Margaret Bacon, Daisy Dorothy Hendr, Mary Dell White, Katherine Mae Simms, Evelyn Briant and Mary Nell Carter.

Another pretty compliment for Miss Martha Ann Singleton, who left this morning for her new home in Tucson, Ariz., was the handkerchief shower given on Monday morning by Miss Mary Della White at her home on South Main street. Sharing the pleasure of this delightful occasion were the following friends: Enola Alexander, Margaret Bacon, Katherine Franks, Mary Nell Carter, Evelyn Briant, Ruth Lewis, Daisy Dorothy Hendr, Katherine Mae Simms, Nell Williams, Joan Kathon of Tallulah, La., Margery Waddle, Nancy Ruth Carrigan and Frances Russell of Ladonia, Texas. A refreshing ice course was served with cake.

Mrs. J. Patrick Duffie and children have returned from a delightful visit with Mrs. Duffie's sister, Mrs. Layne Addison and Mr. Addison of Canadian, Texas. They also visited in Amarillo, Dallas and Fort Worth, being joined in Fort Worth by Mr. Duffie, who returned with them Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Anderson announce the marriage of their daughter, Fanny, to Hugh Hall. The wedding was solemnized on Friday evening in Prescott, Mr. and Mrs. Hall are domiciled in the Phillips apartments on North Hazel street.

Miss Frances Russell of Ladonia, Texas is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Russell, South Main street.

Bill Terry Speaks to Esso Dealers

Another idol of the sports world went Hollywood Tuesday night when "Memphis Bill" Terry first baseman and manager of the world champion New York Giants, made his screen debut in "Leadership" before an enthusiastic audience of Esso service station dealers at the Capitol Hotel in Hope.

Terry proved himself as adept at facing the terrors of the motion picture camera and the microphone as he is at looking over fancy curves from the pitcher's box in the big league baseball parks. If he felt nervous during the filming of his first picture, he didn't show it as he told Esso dealers how running a service station business calls for the same "Leadership" as running a championship baseball team.

The Giants' manager was applauded vigorously at the conclusion of his screen appearance.

The meeting was the most successful of its kind ever held in this area according to the many employers and dealers present. More than 35 attended, including Esso dealers from Prescott, Hope, Arkadelphia and Searcy.

Following the Terry picture which opened the meeting was a short talk by R.H. Ventross of the wholesale division who said that the purpose of the meeting was to show Esso dealers the feature-length motion picture, entitled "At the Esso Sign," with a view to helping them develop new business in their communities.

"At the Esso Sign" emphasizes the importance of a pleasant personality in dealing with the motoring public. Mr. Ventross declared, "We expect that this picture will further improve the quality of Esso service throughout our marketing territory. More and more the motorist is coming to look for pleasant and efficient service at Esso stations from Maine to Louisiana. Once the dealer recognizes the importance of giving the proper service he invariably brings his service up to our standard."

The feature picture proved intensely interesting to the audience. It was the story of the typical service station dealer whose habit of overlooking obvious sales opportunities were finally overcome. The picture showed clearly the effect on his sales of improved station appearance, service and merchandising methods.

Many dealers expressed their appreciation to the Esso Marketers for having had an opportunity to see this picture, which they voted the best the company had ever brought to them.

Drouth No Reason for AAA Assault

Tugwell Declares Tory Attack on Program Is "Childish"

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Rexford G. Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture, said Tuesday night "there is something both infantile and wicked in the eagerness with which reactionary obacurants" have seized upon the drouth in attacking the administration farm program.

Tugwell said that without the New Deal's millions to aid agriculture and drouth victims and its measures to provide against future catastrophes, "we should face famine and political revolution in the farm states and food riots in the cities."

Describing the Farm Administration's effort to adjust production and consumption, Tugwell, whose address was released through the Democratic National Committee, said: "I know that I am speaking for the Department of Agriculture when I say that it is only with the greatest reluctance that we temporarily called a halt to that unchecked, gigantic and uneconomic abundance which is the first law of nature, but we felt that with industrial America controlling its production in order to maintain profitable prices with absolute indifference to the fate of millions who depend on the industry for a livelihood, agricultural America could not survive without corresponding measures of re-adjustment and self-control."

Hitting at those who have "seized on the great natural calamity of a drouth," as a means of destroying or discrediting the will of the American people, as expressed in Congress, for betterment of agriculture, Tugwell said:

"These same Tories fought for years to maintain unlimited immigration into the United States, in order that they could have a constant supply of cheap labor and of what really amounted to a reservoir of strikebreakers with which to combat efforts of American labor to win decent wages and working conditions; they are now fighting for an agricultural production subject only to the uncertain control of nature with which to lessen the cost of raw materials and to increase by speculation their unnecessary profits."

MY feet will never stray again, dear God,
Not ever, though the moon be ever bright
Across the counterpane, and I shall bear
Him I have loved low-calling in the night.

"THIS is my place, and I shall never go
To seek the spring that I have known with him.
I have a row of tasks you've given me,
Kind, gentle tasks, not any of them grim.

NOW I shall take his kisses from my lips,
Nor seek his smile and reach to touch his hand.
I'll close my ears to three small singing words,
So sweet they were! Dear God, please understand!

AND I shall plot the day with tasks you give,
I'll walk Your path nor ever turn apart,
I promise You my feet will never stray—
But please, dear God, be patient with my heart!

Western Film at Saenger Thursday

Ken Maynard and Walter Miller Starred in "Smoking Guns"

Ken Maynard, fugitive from justice, wanted for murder, and his captor, a Texas Ranger, played by Walter Miller, battle man-eating crocodiles; Ken and his wonder-horse, Tarzan, race through terrific gun fights in his latest western, "Smoking Guns," which has been booked as the second mid-week western by the Saenger manager and will show this Thursday matinee and night only.

Maynard matches his luck and daring against a band of ruthless outlaws and outwits them at every turn. After many thrilling gun battles he succeeds in convincing the girl, Gloria Shea, that he is innocent. He rescues her from being kidnapped by the outlaw chief and breaks up the band of criminals and is rewarded by winning the heart of the girl he loves.

The cast consists of such well known screen players as Harold Goodwin, Bob Kortman, Jack Rockwell, Ed Coxen, Eddie Cobb, Slim Whitaker, Fred McKeye Charles Murphy, Martin Turner and others including Maynard's wonder horse, Tarzan.

Three exceptionally good short subjects are scheduled on the same program among which is a one-reeler for fishermen, called "Lucky Anglers," Claude Hopkins and band is another in "Barber Shop Blues."

Situation Acute
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—(AP)—The situation in the truck drivers' strike had become acute Tuesday night. Troops, armed for action, stood ready to quell possible outbreaks of violence. Strikers were mobilizing.

"Anyone who defies military rule must suffer the consequences," said Adj. Gen. E. A. Walsh.

His statement was made after strikers, setting out to stop all truck movement, had beaten two drivers and frightened a third from his vehicle. The disturbances followed the death of a motorist, when a troop car, answering a call, collided with his automobile.

Publicly announcing they would defy military rule of the city imposed by Gov. Floyd B. Olson, strike leaders issued a statement declaring the military "has operated and is operating exclusively in the interests of the employers and against the men who are fighting for a living wage."

"Scab trucks are operating with military permits in ever increasing numbers," the statement said. "Despite all his harsh blows directed at the employers, Governor Olson directs all his harsh blows at the union and the strike."

William Brown, president of the truck drivers' union, was arrested. John Belor became the second casualty of the current strike, dying of injuries received July 20.

By the Associated Press
Another death and four injuries were added to the strike toll Tuesday as trucks moved without restriction at Minneapolis, where the National Guard ruled the city. Other strike casualties were nine city employees of a shirt mill at York, Pa., gassed by police during an outbreak of violence. The nine girls were injured at York when police dispersed 40 strikers who sought to prevent the unloading of material at a shirt mill.

Thousands of longshoremen and other maritime workers returned to their jobs at San Francisco, ending the strike which began May 9 and cost at least eight lives.

The strike at the Union stockyards in Chicago spread into Fackington when some 400 meat cutters quit at the C. A. Burnette & Co. plant.

Striking tugmen returned to their tasks at Cleveland and other Great

Middling Inch Sells at 20c at Bradley Wednesday

The first bale of cotton to be ginned in southwest Arkansas and incidentally the second bale for the entire state, was ginned Wednesday at Bradley, LaFayette county.

The staple, middling one inch, sold for 20 cents per pound. It was bought by Hammer & Russell cotton firm. The bale was grown by P. M. Allen of near Bradley, one of the largest cotton growers in southwest Arkansas.

It was reported that Mr. Allen has enough cotton open and ready to pick for 10 more bales.
